

University Library Annual Report

2016-2017

Cyndy L. Robertson
Interim Dean of the Library

September 15, 2017

Academic Year 2016-2017 ended with the near completion of the weeding project and a 55% reduction in the print collection. The remaining print collection is now housed on floors three and four. Government documents, media and serials have been relocated. The print government documents collection is now located on the fourth floor. The fifth floor is used as a quiet study area and the second floor is to become the digital library with spaces for collaboration and active learning.

Statistics show an increased number of visitors in the library, an increased number of both classes and students in bibliographic instruction sessions, an increase in inter-library loan usage, an increase in electronic resource usage and an increase in circulation which is attributed to an increase in the use of study rooms. Statistics do show a decrease in reference instructional and directional questions. Personnel changes in addition to interim positions for the Dean, Assistant Dean and Coordinator of Special Collections, include the resignations of two reference librarians whose positions were filled and the retirement of one library specialist whose position was also filled.

"Academic Librarians and Readers Advisory for Recreational Reading" (Planning)
Missed opportunities and things we could have done better as professionals sometimes suggest a project. This came to me last night when a college student asked me what he should read for fun. At an academic library, we have all books including our popular reading collection in call number order, which does not lend itself to ease of browsing in the same way as public library fiction collections. Also, academic librarians traditionally do not have training in readers advisory for recreational reading. Summer is just around the corner and more of our students may look to us for reading suggestions. Some ways academic librarians may make their popular collections more accessible for browsing and improve our readers advisory skills are.....
