

Teaching Assistantship in Low Brass (Tenor Trombone, Bass Trombone, or Tuba)

- RESPONSIBILITIES: Performance with the Chamber Arts Brass, the faculty brass quintet at ULM. Other duties may include ensemble coaching, studio assignments with non-music majors, performance with university ensembles, teaching a music appreciation class as part of core curriculum, other assignments based on expertise and interest. There are additional performance opportunities with the Monroe Symphony Orchestra, local musical theatre and performing groups, and national touring events that make Monroe one of their stops.
- STIPEND: $7500 per academic year, full tuition waiver.
- QUALIFICATIONS: Winning audition for the faculty brass quintet position, Bachelor's degree in music, and admission to the Graduate School.
- DEGREES: Master of Music with concentrations in instrumental conducting, choral conducting, performance, theory and composition, and music education.
- APPLICATION: An on campus audition/interview is required for admission to one of the degree plans listed above. Admission to the Graduate School is required for consideration. Applications are reviewed on a continuing basis until position is filled.
- DIVISION OF MUSIC: In the College of Arts and Sciences and housed in the School of Visual and Performing Arts, the Division of Music, which holds NASM accreditation, offers B.M., B.M.E., and M.M. degrees. The Division enjoys extensive participation by non-music majors as well as majors in its bands, choirs, operas, musicals and orchestra. The Division currently has 22 full-time faculty and employs 7 graduate assistants. A $5 million complete renovation of the music facility with the addition of a new 300-seat recital hall was completed in 2004.
- The brass faculty at ULM includes Marilyn Gibson – trumpet, Dr. James Boldin – horn, and Dr. Micah Everett – trombone/euphonium/tuba.
- THE UNIVERSITY: The University of Louisiana at Monroe, a state-supported institution with over 8500 students, is situated on a 208-acre campus along the banks of Bayou DeSiard. The University combines the beauty of the bayou and a tree-shaded campus with modern, well-equipped academic and athletic facilities and residence halls. ULM presents a varied schedule of music, art, dance, and theatre events. The cultural, academic, recreational, and social opportunities make ULM an excellent place to study and work.

For more information contact:

Dr. Micah Everett, Assistant Professor of Low Brass
University of Louisiana at Monroe Division of Music
700 University Ave.
Monroe, LA 71209
318-342-1596 Fax 318-342-1599
everett@ulm.edu

Dr. Mark Ross Clark, Director
University of Louisiana at Monroe Division of Music
700 University Ave.
Monroe, LA 71209
318-342-3247 Fax 318-342-1599
mclark@ulm.edu