

5 WAYS TO BUILD YOUR RESUME

When you think about gaining resume-worthy experience, think outside the realm of only full-and-part-time jobs and internships only. While these are great opportunities, there are many other ways to gain experience that will help build your resume and catch the eye of an employer.

1 Join a Research Project

Not only will you learn new things about an interesting field, You'll build valuable relationships with faculty. OR think about Senior Capstone projects you have been a part of and how they can add valuable skills to your resume.

2 Study Abroad

Leaving the country for a few weeks, a semester or a year can enhance your cultural awareness, spark a passion or vision, and simply give you a bigger perspective of your career values.

3 Volunteer in the Community

Employers love to see that you are giving back and honing meaningful skills--so get involved with causes you care about in Monroe or your hometown, for a few hours a week or a whole semester.

4 Serve Through Leadership

Join the National Society of Leadership and Success and/or Career Ambassadors to add robust involvement to your repertoire.

5 Get Plugged with a Campus Organization

There are over 100 student organizations on campus that cover a broad range of interests. Do not just go to meetings--snag a leadership role and make a difference
